I recently realised so many people living in Australia have involved with this process, either as the sponsor or the one who's sponsored. And I learned that it involves soooo many procedures, including making a PowerPoint of your love story timeline and possibly, changing the beneficiary of your insurance.\n\nI don't need the visa, but for those who went through the process, did it make you love your partner even more? Did that long time of waiting and information gathering make you two know each other more? I'm working on an audio documentary about romantic relationships caught in immigration, and keen on hearing your thoughts! \n\nThank you so much!",
